NDEP's Redesigning the Health Care Team: Diabetes Prevention and Lifelong Management, updated in June 2011, provides practical resources to help health care professionals and organizations implement team care for people with diabetes.

The guide contains:

- Evidence that supports team care as a component of effective diabetes management
- Steps for forming and maintaining a successful team
- Case studies demonstrating real-world team care in traditional and nontraditional settings

Team care is a component of health care reform initiatives that incorporate an integrated health care delivery system, especially those initiatives for chronic disease prevention and management.
